to be organized into three infantry Kommandos, each having an authorized strength of about 400 police; one artillery Kommando; one armored Kommando; and six or seven Sonderkommandos which are special AT artillery, mortar, AAA, engineer, signal, motor transport, and medical units, each Sonderkommando having an authorized strength of about 120 police.

Since the number of previous VP Bereitschaften and schools was reduced almost 50 percent, it can be stated that the new mixed cadre Bereitschaften were, on an average, activated from personnel of two former Bereitschaften and of several schools. For example, the new Bereitschaft [] in Prora has been organized from personnel of the 5th VP Bereitschaft in Ruechen-see, the 6th VP Bereitschaft in Potsdam-Niche, and the VP schools in Prora and Priemervald. In the course of the reorganization, several VP schools were dissolved, e.g., those in Prenzlan, Prora, and Pirna. VP schools which were [] still in existence include the armored school in Priemervald, the artillery school in Gloewen, the infantry school in Taumburg, the higher tactical school in Kochstedt, the polit-culture school in Treptow (previously located in Torgau), the motor transport school in Apollensdorf (previously located in Apolda), the ordnance school in Dobrilugk, the interpreter school in Holzdorf near Mohra, and the medical school in Leipzig-Niederitzsch.
